Safe Shopping Guide

ILLINOIS ATTORNEY GENERAL

www.IllinoisAttorneyGeneral.gov

A Message from Attorney General Kwame Raoul

The gift giving season is already in full swing, as many holiday shoppers try to finish their lists earlier this year to allow plenty of time for shipping. Whether your shopping is nearly complete or you are just getting started, it is important to be aware of hazardous toys and children's products that have been recalled during the year. I encourage anyone shopping for children to check my office's annual Safe Shopping Guide to understand the dangers posed by seemingly innocuous children's products, and avoid inadvertently purchasing a toy or item that has been recalled.

This year, the Safe Shopping Guide highlights more than 50 recalls issued by the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission during 2021. Descriptions of the toys, furniture, children's clothing and other children's products are accompanied by photographs to make hazardous products easier to identify. Descriptions also include actions families can take if they already have any of these products in their homes.

I am urging families to be aware of recalled toys with parts that can break off and become choking hazards, or which contain levels of lead or other harmful chemicals that can result in poisoning or skin irritation. The guide also includes children's clothing that does not meet flammability standards or that poses strangulation hazards. It is particularly critical that parents, grandparents and guardians are aware of products, including inclined sleeper accessories and gliders, that have been connected to infant fatalities.

The guide also highlights toys and products for older children, such as bicycles with faulty brakes and parts that can dislodge and cause riders to fall and become injured. Families should also be aware of hover boards that can overheat or explode, and youth all-terrain vehicles that do not meet safety requirements and speed restrictions, posing a risk of serious injury or death.

Even though recalled products should not be sold, families should ensure they do not have these items in their homes. At a time when many shoppers will visit secondhand websites where these products may still be available, it is particularly important that anyone who has a child on their shopping list check the guide before shopping, and avoid purchasing toys or items that could harm a child you love.

If you have questions about products included in the guide, please call the Attorney General's Product Recall Hotline at 1-888-414-7678 (TTY: 1-800-964-3013). Current and previous editions of the Safe Shopping Guide can be found at https://www.illinoisattorneygeneral.gov/consumers/safe_shopping.html

I wish all Illinois families a safe and healthy holiday season.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read 'Kwame Raoul'. The signature is stylized and fluid.

Kwame Raoul
Attorney General
